Topicality

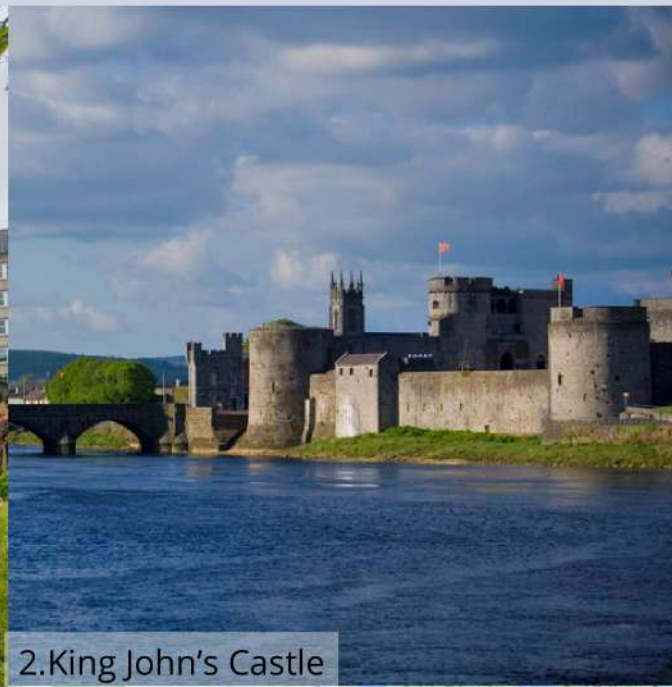

The project was made on the basis of the "Designer's Den" competition from Archiola Competitions. This is a competition for a new look at designing a studio space for artists. According to the competition brief, it was necessary to create a multi-functional space containing the following key areas: work, exhibition, recreational and secondary. Also, the task of the competition included the need to observe the principles of functionality, aesthetics and environmental friendliness in the design of the studio. The participants of the competition were free to choose the location for the project.
